Introduction

- Ma Wu Du Forest

Ma Wu Du Forest is known for its rich species of animals and plants and numerous waterfalls. The name comes from the Atayal people's language and translates, roughly, to mean Forest of Abundant Wood and Cool Clear Water. The park is home to two ancient Chinese Red Bayberry trees (Myrica Rubra) under management of the Forest Bureau. They are known as "Grandpa Yangmei"- forest management number No. 22 – nearly 300 years old and "Grandma Yangmei"- forest management number of No. 23- nearly 500 years old! These two national treasures stand side by side in Ma Wu Du Forest. What's more, there is a viewing platform from which you can drink in the vistas of the Ma Wu Du Forest and the mountain scenery of Taoyuan County.

- King-Yong Tomato Farm

At the King-Yong Tomato Farm, you'll find more than 30 kinds of tomatoes from all over the world! Different colors and different nutritional values of tomatoes, a colorful pepper garden, an organic greenhouse with a strawberry garden, gourd painting, Hakka rice, Lei Cha, flower DIY and so much more can all be found at King-Yong Farm! The farm combines agricultural production, ecology, and life.
